

Raghav Srikanth – Planning for Return to School – 9 July 2020

What additional tutoring and alternative facility access can be provided to students to facilitate an improved back-to-school experience in both the immediate and long-term. I would contend that any back-to-school plan must take into account the current capacity for parental involvement across the social spectrum, and facilitate greater access and support for those from underprivileged and minority communities, as well as the differently-abled.